But I hear that there is a magpie with chicks.

To be continued

Hello, I'm S_owl, author of Hongdo. You can call me Snowy Owl or Noon Bu ung ("snowy owl" in Korean), Sueol, Suol, Soul, or S_oil. Thanks for reading my humble manhwa as always!

Today, I wanted to say a little about the saek sil in the manhwa it's the small ball the children play with in this chapter

Photos from Hyun Sook Lee at Da Mool Workshop. I got permission to use the photo after asking her. Thank you again to Hyun Sook Lee for allowing me to use your precious photos!

Saek sil balls are normally know as "temari" balls. They originated in China and were passed on to the traditional cultures of Korea and Japan.

The balls often appear in Japanese manga or social media, so, people often think that it's a traditional Japanese object.

Hongdo is set in a country named Gyo, but I based the saek sil balls on Korean ones.

Thank you for being interested in temari balls, part of Korean traditional culture. I've finished this note, so see you in chapter 4.

Thank you~
